

An OUTSTANDING After School Care

Programme

Name of Organization	: Tuen Mun District Women's Association Limited
District	: Tuen Mun
Collaborator	: TSDCA Siu Leun School
Project Duration	: 3 years (April 2004 to March 2007)
Grant Approved	: HK$300,000

This programme is an example of community-school collaboration using a capacity building approach to address local concerns about the risks of some children becoming street kids because their families, for different reasons such as working parents or relationship or personal factors, were unable to provide them with care and attention, nurture their development, or practical advice with their school work.

The project enlisted the participation of local parents and university students to recreate an "extended family" environment much needed for these children. After 9 months, over 40 local parents, including community volunteers and 15 university students gained skills, confidence and experience as volunteer tutors, carers and activity organizers. They are now self-managing a daily after-school programme for over 40 children at a local primary school.

Bonds were established between the children and these tutors, with the children calling them "aunties" or "big brothers/sisters". Their social experiences were enriched, and the school reported improved behaviour and academic performance. The parent tutors also gained significantly in their inter-personal skills, sense of achievement and competence; with some local parents having gained employment for the first time.
